This week's big idea

Embracing uniqueness and diversity.

Celebrating difference as strength.

Corinthians 12: 12-27

One body-many parts.

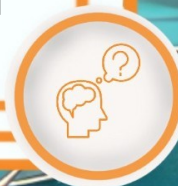

Bible verse of the week

Exploring further

We thought of lots of groups or objects that had multiple parts. This shows how St Paul wanted Christians to understand how they all contributed to being part of that group. We thought about how Lego parts are different but all valuable. We considered what a Lego model would look like if you only used one sort of piece. We thought about a car and a computer and other things.

We then thought about how this applied to us in our communities. We thought about individual pupils and adults and how they used their strengths to make school a better place. We thought about things we weren't so good at and how other people helped us.

We also agreed that having a variety of different people, from different backgrounds and with different strengths is a really good thing.

Prayer of the week

Dear God

Thank you for all the different people in my school. Help me to see and to value the part they play in making my school a better place. Remind me to have confidence in the important part I play in the school family. Amen

This week's activity

Can you think of or list as many different strengths or qualities that your friends in your class have? Can you list your own?

Can you say how someone with different strengths to you helps you in school?

Explore further at home

Think about people you meet when you are home. How do you use your qualities and strengths to help them?

Quote of the week
